26334 - Medical test to prove wife’s virginity

the question

Is it permissible for us to do a routine test to prove virginity?

Detailed answer

Praise be to Allah.

If what is meant is a medical examination to prove virginity, there is nothing wrong with that if it is needed and is requested by the husband, especially if there is some element of suspicion. It may become a must if there is no other way of resolving the matter.