7216 - Are Muslims fatalists?

the question

Are Muslims fatalists?

Detailed answer

Praise be to Allah.

Fatalists are those who think that a person has no choice in what he does and is compelled to do it, and that his actions are like the actions of a tree which is moved by the wind. Their opposites are those who think that a person creates or initiates his own deeds. The Ahl al-Sunnah wa'l-Jamaa'ah (Sunni Muslims who follow the way of the Prophet ` (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him)) follow a middle path between these two extremes and believe that man has a free will but that this will is subject to the Will of Allah. A person does not initiate his own deeds, neither is he compelled to do what he does; he can decide for himself, within the framework of the Will of Allah. And Allah knows best.