

36674 - Is Cursing Prohibited in Islam?

---

the question

What is the ruling on cursing (and not just insulting) the Jews and Christians or other groups, whether living or dead? May Allah reward you with good.

Summary of answer

Cursing in Islam is subject to specific guidelines. General curses against evildoers and disbelievers are permissible, while cursing individuals is disputed among scholars. The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) discouraged cursing specific sinners, emphasizing mercy and repentance.

Detailed answer

Praise be to Allah.

Definition of Cursing in Islam

The author of Lisan Al-`Arab [a famous Arabic-language dictionary – Translator] said: La`n (curse) means being cast out far from goodness, and it was said that it means being cast away far from Allah, and from people.

General vs. Specific Curses

Cursing happens in two ways:

- Cursing the disbelievers and sin in general terms, such as saying “May Allah curse the Jews and Christians,” or “May Allah curse the disbelievers, evildoers and wrongdoers,” or “May Allah curse the wine-drinker and thief.”

This kind of curse is permissible and there is nothing wrong with it. Ibn Muflih (may Allah have mercy on him) said in Al-Adab Ash-Shar`iyyah, 1/203: "It is permissible to curse the disbelievers in general."

- The second is where the curse is applied to a specific person, whether he is a disbeliever or an evildoer, such as saying, "May Allah curse So and so," mentioning him by name. This may fall into one of two categories:

1. Where there is a text which states that he is cursed, such as Iblis, or where there is a text which states that he died as a disbeliever, such as Pharaoh, Abu Lahab and Abu Jahl. Cursing such persons is permitted.

Ibn Muflih (may Allah have mercy on him) said in Al-Adab Ash-Shar`iyyah, 1/214: "It is permissible to curse those concerning whom there is a text stating that they are cursed, but there is no sin involved if one does not do this."

1. Cursing a particular disbeliever or evildoer concerning whom there is no text stating that they are cursed – such as wine-drinkers, those who offer sacrifices to anything other than Allah, the one who curses his parents, those who introduce innovations in religion, and so on.

Scholarly Opinions on Cursing Individuals

"The scholars differed as to whether it is permissible to curse these people, and there are three points of view:

- That it is not permissible under any circumstances
- That it is permissible in the case of a disbeliever but not of a (Muslim) evildoer
- That it is permissible in all cases." (Al-Adab Ash-Shar`iyyah by Ibn Muflih, 1/303)

Those who say that it is not permissible quoted a number of texts as evidence, including the following:

1. The report narrated by Al-Bukhari (4070) from `Abdullah ibn `Umar (may Allah be pleased with him), that he heard the Messenger of Allah (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him), when he raised his head from Ruku` in the final Rak`ah of Fajr prayer and said: "O Allah, curse So and so, and So and so, and So and so," after he had said, "Sami`a Allahu li man hamidah, Rabbana wa lakal-hamd." Then Allah revealed the words (interpretation of the meaning):

{Not for you (O Muhammad, but for Allah) is the decision; whether He turns in mercy to (pardons) them or punishes them; verily, they are the Thalimun (polytheists, disobedients and wrongdoers).} [Al `Imran 3:128]

1. The report narrated by Al-Bukhari (6780) from `Umar (may Allah be pleased with him), that there was a man at the time of the Messenger of Allah (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) whose name was `Abdullah, but his nickname was Himar (donkey), and he used to make the Messenger of Allah (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) laugh. The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) had him (previously) flogged for drinking, then he was brought one day and he commanded that he be flogged, and a man who was there said, "O Allah, curse him, how often he is brought [for this reason]!" But the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) said: "Do not curse him, for by Allah what I know about him is that he loves Allah and His Messenger."

Shaykh Al-Islam Ibn Taymiyah (may Allah have mercy on him) said in Majmu` Al-Fatawa, 6/511.

It is permissible to curse all those whom Allah and His Messenger have cursed, but as for cursing specific people, if it is known that the person died in disbelief, then it is permissible to curse him. But with regard to a specific [Muslim] evildoer, we should not curse him, because the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) forbade cursing `Abdullah ibn Himar who used to drink wine, even though he had cursed the wine-drinkers in general; however cursing a specific person if he is an evildoer or promoter of Bid`ah is a point of dispute among the scholars.

And Shaykh Ibn `Uthaymin (may Allah have mercy on him) said in Al-Qawl Al-Mufid, 1/226.

The difference between cursing a specific person and cursing those who commit sin in general is that the former (cursing a specific person) is not allowed, and the latter (cursing the people who commit sin in general) is allowed. So if you see an innovator, you do not say, 'May Allah curse you,' rather say, 'May the curse of Allah be upon those who introduce innovations,' in general terms. The evidence for that is the fact that when the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) cursed some people among the polytheists and followers of Jahiliyyah and said: "O Allah, curse So and so, and So and so, and So and so," he was told not to do that when Allah said (interpretation of the meaning):

{Not for you (O Muhammad, but for Allah) is the decision; whether He turns in mercy to (pardons) them or punishes them; verily, they are the Thalimun (polytheists, disobedients and wrongdoers).}
[Al `Imran 3:128]

This was narrated by Al-Bukhari.

See these answers for additional insight. (175522, 145757, 335855, 175428, 6262, 45148, 5733, 119690)

And Allah knows best.